

Nomination speech: Thure Lindhardt

Speaker: Rikke Rottensten, September 7, 2011

As a young, newly trained actor, Thure Lindhardt was always cast in roles as "a young man with problems." Nowadays, and thanks to his great, well-considered efforts on his own part, Thure Lindhardt has moved far away from these. Now he has performed wonderful life style comic in a sitcom called Sandheden om mænd (The Truth about Men) and in the Danish historical genre as a determined resistance fighter in Flammen & Citronen (Flame & Citron). Here one can see everything one might wish for of his career and his undeniable gifts. A mature, quite unexpectedly wide-ranging and highly intelligent actor who fortunately has returned to the theatre this season in Forbrydelse og Straf (Crime and Punishment).
